THE MEN OF THE NORTH.

Fierce as its sunlight, the East may be proud
Of its gay, gaudy hues, and its skies without cloud;
Mitd as its breezes, the beautiful West
May smile like the vaileys that dimple its breast;
The South may rejoice in the vine and the palm.
In the groves where the midnight is alcepy withbalm.
Pair though they be,
There's an isle in the seas,
The home of the braye and the boast of the free;
Hear it, ye lands, let our shouts each forth.
The Lords of the World are the men of the North!

Cold though our senson, and dull though our skles,
There's a might in our arm and a fire in our eyes.
Dauntless and putient to dare and to do.
Our watchword is duty, our maxim is "thought;"
Winter and storm only nerve us the more,
Strong shall we be
In our isle of the sea.
The home of the brave and the boast of the free;
Firm as the rock where the storm flashes forth.
We stand in our courage, the mon of the North,

Sunbeams that ripen the clive and vins,
In the face of the slave and coward may shine;
Roses may blossom whos freedom decays,
And crown'd by a growth of the suns brightest rays;
Scant though the innvest we reap from the soil,
Yet virtue and health are the children of toil.
Proud let us be
Of our isle of the sea.
The home of the brave and the boast of the free;
Men with true hearts, let our fame echo forth,
Oh, these are the fruits that we grow in the North!
